If personal data is transferred to a third country, this will take place exclusively under the appropriate safeguards set forth in Chapter V of the GDPR.

5. DATA PROTECTION RIGHTS OF DATA SUBJECTS

The rights of data subjects are set forth in detail in the relevant provisions of the GDPR (in particular Articles 12–22 and 77–80), regarding which our Company, as the data controller, provides the following overview.

The data subject must be informed of the measures taken in response to a request to exercise their rights within one month of receipt of the request. The day of receipt of the request is not included in the time limit. If necessary, taking into account the complexity of the request and the number of requests, this time limit may be extended by an additional two months. The data subject must be informed of the extension of the time limit, stating the reasons for the delay, within one month of receipt of the request.

5.1. Right of access under Article 15 of the GDPR

The data subject has the right to receive confirmation from the data controller as to whether personal data concerning them are being processed, and if such processing is taking place, they have the right to access the personal data and the following information:

- a) the purposes of the processing;
- b) the categories of personal data concerned;
- c) the recipients or categories of recipients to whom the personal data have been or will be disclosed, including, in particular, recipients in third countries or international organizations;
- d) where applicable, the intended period for which the personal data will be stored, or, if this is not possible, the criteria used to determine that period;
- e) the right of the data subject to request from the controller the rectification, erasure, or restriction of processing of personal data concerning them, and to object to the processing of such personal data;
- f) the right to file a complaint with a supervisory authority;
- g) where the data have not been collected from the data subject, any available information as to their origin;
- h) the existence of automated decision-making, including profiling, and, at least in those cases, meaningful information about the logic involved, as well as the significance and the envisaged consequences of such processing for the data subject.

If personal data is transferred to a third country or to an international organization, the data subject has the right to be informed of the appropriate safeguards regarding the transfer in accordance with Article 46 of the GDPR.

The data controller shall provide the data subject with a copy of the personal data undergoing processing. For any additional copies requested by the data subject, the data controller may charge a reasonable fee based on administrative costs. If the data subject submitted the request electronically, the information must be provided in a commonly used electronic format, unless the data subject requests otherwise.

5.2. Right to rectification under Article 16 of the GDPR

The data subject has the right to obtain from the controller, upon request and without undue delay, the rectification of inaccurate personal data concerning them. Taking into account the purposes of the processing, the data subject has the right to request that incomplete personal data be completed, including by means of providing a supplementary statement.

5.3. Right to erasure under Article 17 of the GDPR (“right to be forgotten”)

The data subject has the right to request that the data controller erase personal data concerning them without undue delay, and the data controller is obliged to erase personal data concerning the data subject without undue delay if any of the following grounds apply:

- a) the personal data are no longer necessary in relation to the purposes for which they were collected or otherwise processed;
- b) the data subject withdraws consent on which the processing is based, and there is no other legal basis for the processing;
- c) the data subject objects to the processing, and there are no overriding legitimate grounds for the processing;
- d) the personal data has been processed unlawfully;
- e) the personal data must be erased for compliance with a legal obligation under European Union or Member State law to which the controller is subject;
- f) the personal data was collected in connection with the offering of information society services.

If the data controller has made the personal data public and is required to erase it pursuant to the foregoing, it shall take all reasonable steps — including technical measures — to inform the controllers processing the data that the data subject has requested the deletion of links to the personal data in question or of copies or duplicates of such personal data.

Deletion may be refused if the processing is (i) necessary for the exercise of the right to freedom of expression and the right to information, or (ii) is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the controller is subject, or for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller; (iii) is necessary for reasons of public interest in the area of public health; (iv) is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes, or statistical purposes, insofar as the right to erasure is likely to render such processing impossible or seriously impair it; and (v) is necessary for the establishment, exercise, or defense of legal claims.

5.4. Right to restriction of processing under Article 18 of the GDPR

The data subject has the right to obtain from the controller restriction of processing upon request if any of the following applies:

- a) the data subject contests the accuracy of the personal data; in this case, the restriction applies for a period enabling the controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
- b) the processing is unlawful, and the data subject opposes the erasure of the data and requests the restriction of their use instead;
- c) the controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of processing, but the data subject requires them for the establishment, exercise, or defense of legal claims; or
- d) the data subject has objected to the processing; in this case, the restriction applies for as long as it has not been determined whether the controller’s legitimate grounds override those of the data subject.

If data processing is restricted, such personal data may be processed, with the exception of storage, only with the data subject’s consent, or for the purpose of asserting, exercising, or defending legal claims, or to protect the rights of another natural or legal person, or for reasons of substantial public interest of the European Union or Hungary.

The data controller shall inform the data subject, at whose request data processing has been restricted, in advance of the lifting of the restriction on data processing.

5.5. The right to data portability under Article 20 of the GDPR

The data subject has the right to receive the personal data concerning them, which they have provided to a controller, in a structured, commonly used, and machine-readable format, and to transmit those data to another controller without hindrance from the controller to whom the personal data have been provided, where:

- a) the processing is based on consent or a contract; and

b) the processing is carried out by automated means.

In exercising the right to data portability, the data subject has the right to request, where technically feasible, the direct transmission of the personal data between data controllers.

5.6. Right to object under Article 21 of the GDPR

The data subject has the right to object at any time, on grounds relating to their particular situation, to the processing of their personal data based on Article 6(1) under points (e) or (f), including profiling based on those provisions. In such a case, the controller may no longer process the personal data unless the controller demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject or which are related to the establishment, exercise, or defense of legal claims.

The data subject has the right to object at any time to the processing of their personal data for remarketing purposes. This includes both online (cookie/pixel-based) remarketing and direct marketing communications. In the event of an objection, our Company may not continue to process the data subject's data for such purposes and will ensure that the data subject does not receive personalised advertisements or direct marketing offers.

5.7. Right to an effective judicial remedy

If the data subject believes that the data controller has violated applicable data protection requirements in the processing of their personal data, the data subject may:

- a) file a complaint with the National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (Address: 9–11 Falk Miksa utca, 1055 Budapest, Hungary; Postal Address: P.O. Box 9, 1363 Budapest, Hungary; Email Address: ugyfelszolgalat@naih.hu; Website: www.naih.hu), or
- b) For the protection of your data, you have the option of turning to a court, which will handle the case on an expedited basis. In this case, you are free to decide whether to file your lawsuit with the court having jurisdiction based on your place of residence (permanent address), your place of stay (temporary address), or the data controller's registered office. The court with jurisdiction based on your place of residence or temporary residence can be found at <http://birosag.hu/ugyfelkapcsolati-portal/birosag-kereso>. Based on our Company's registered office, the Budapest Metropolitan Court has jurisdiction over the lawsuit.
